4. Proposed research project

You must consult with potential advisors and/or the School Postgraduate Coordinator before lodging this Application for Admission and Scholarship. The assessment of your application will be delayed if you do not do so, and other processes (such as obtaining ethical clearance for your proposed research project or obtaining funding to conduct your research) may also be delayed.

The title of my proposed research project is (maximum 20 words)

- Please provide a description of your proposed area of research. The information you provide about your proposed research project is the starting-point for discussions with potential advisors and your proposed enrolling school. The final version of your mutually agreed research project may be different from the information you provide here: however, the information you provide helps determine if your research interests are a good match with the research strengths of your advisors and school, can be appropriately resourced and funded at UQ, are of appropriate scope and originality for your proposed RHD program, and can be completed in the expected period of candidature (1-2 years FTE for the MPhil, 3-4 years FTE for the PhD).

What are your proposed project's research question or problem and its significance? (maximum 300 words)

- To ask the question another way, "What are you going to do and why?" Because the PhD and MPhil must consist of original research, it is important to show that the problem you propose to investigate is significant enough to warrant the investigation. Please explain what problem your research is going to address and why it is necessary to answer this problem, in language suitable for a non-specialist academic audience.

What is your proposed project's research methodology and expected outcomes? (maximum 600 words)

- To ask the question another way, "How are you going to do it?" This section covers the practical aspects of your research: it may be very difficult to determine if your research project is suitable for the PhD or the MPhil program if you cannot describe how you will conduct the research. You are not expected to have a detailed methodology at the beginning of your research project, but you should be able to identify in broad terms the way(s) you intend to approach the research question. Please explain what you would do to carry out your research, in language suitable for a non-specialist academic audience.

What is your proposed project's timeline for completing major research tasks? Insert additional rows into the table if required.

Major Tasks (for example, gathering data, fieldwork, thesis writing)	How long will it take?

- To ask the question another way, "How long do you expect this will take?" The MPhil is expected to take 1-2 years FTE, while the PhD is expected to take 3-4 years FTE. You are not expected to have a final plan for completing your project at this time, but it is important to establish that your project could be completed within the expected duration of your RHD candidature and to identify any externally imposed deadlines that may affect how long you can take to finish (for example, if you have tuition fee funding for 6 semesters, your project needs to be one that can be reasonably completed within 6 semesters). Please list the major tasks you expect to undertake and how long you expect it will take to complete them.

What resources (such as expertise, facilities, funding, travel, and so on) do you think your proposed project would require, and do you have funding to support your research?

- To ask the question another way, “What would UQ have to provide to allow you to do this research?” For example, are you doing experiments that need access to large or expensive equipment? Do you need to do field work? Do you need access to journals and manuscripts that may not be available through the UQ library? Do you need access to and training in specific software? It is important to identify any resources that are likely to be essential to your research as early as possible, and to let your potential advisors and school know if you have funding from another source to help meet the costs of your research.

Who have you discussed your proposed research project with at The University of Queensland? Insert additional rows into the table to list additional academics.

Title and Name	Mailing and E-Mail Address

5. Scholarship support

- Domestic research higher degree candidates do not pay tuition fees during their research higher degree studies. UQ covers the cost of the research training place for domestic candidates who do not qualify for a Federal Government (RTS) place.

6. Previous study and qualifications

You must attach certified copies of academic records and degree certificates for all previous tertiary studies, complete and incomplete, unless that study took place at The University of Queensland or you have attached these documents to a previous application form. Photocopies must be certified as true copies of the original documents. Semester results slips are not considered equivalent to an academic record. The assessment of your application will be delayed if you do not attach certified copies of these documents.

Program/Award	Institution	Country	Duration		Completed or completion expected (day/month/year)
			From (month/year)	To (month/year)

- Please give details of all tertiary studies you have been enrolled in, whether complete or incomplete. Please note that international qualifications may not be directly equivalent to Australian standards.
- UQ transcripts are not required.
- You must supply certified copies of original transcripts of your academic record for all non-UQ tertiary studies undertaken or currently enrolled in (irrespective of whether the study was completed or credit transferred to another institution). A certified document must be signed after it is photocopied by a Justice of the Peace, Commissioner for Declarations or Notary Public (or similar government official in an overseas country). UQ Student Centres have staff qualified as Commissioners for Declarations and can certify documents.
- Transcripts must be the official academic record issued by the institution, outlining details of all individual courses undertaken and the results obtained. Details of any degree or diploma completed must be included on the record, including evidence of graduation. An authorised translation must be provided for documents not written in English. Online transcripts, semester results or examination slips cannot be accepted.
- If you have previously enrolled in any research higher degree program at an Australian university without completing the program you must provide a full transcript from these studies and a statement of consumed EFTSL. Previous incomplete research studies may reduce the duration of a scholarship and/or the Research Training Scheme funding available to support your candidature at UQ.

- I have previous incomplete research higher degree studies
- I am transferring from a current research project/continuing a previous research project
- I am starting a new research project

- You must attach a certified copy of your academic record for the incomplete research higher degree, plus certified copies of documents that state how much research higher degree student load you used up in Equivalent Full-Time Student Load (EFTSL) at any previous Australian University, unless that study took place at The University of Queensland. Your consumed EFTSL may be calculated from your HECS liability statements, which are issued to students by every University in each semester of enrolment. The assessment of your application will be delayed if you do not attach certified copies of these documents.
- If you are continuing a research project, please note that your required period of enrolment at UQ before submitting your thesis for assessment depends on the Dean's assessment of credit for the work already completed.

Please give brief details of the reason for transfer/withdrawal from previous research higher degree studies. The assessment of your application may be delayed if you do not provide this information.

- I have attached a copy of my academic Curriculum Vitae

Your academic Curriculum Vitae helps the school and the Dean of the UQ Graduate School determine your readiness for research higher degree candidature, and in some cases will provide the basis for your admission. The assessment of your application will be delayed if you do not attach a current academic Curriculum Vitae, even if you have previously provided an academic Curriculum Vitae to the University.
